The leading trade fair for the shipbuilding and maritime industry

VIGO I SPAIN

OVER TWO DECADES OF BRINGING THE INTERNATIONAL MARITIME INDUSTRY TOGETHER

Since 2006, Navalia has established itself as one of Europe's leading international trade fairs for the shipbuilding and maritime industries.

Each edition brings together in Vigo shipyards, shipowners, marine equipment manufacturers, engineering firms, suppliers, public institutions, technology centres, industry associations, and key decision-makers from dozens of countries.

More than a trade exhibition, Navalia has become a platform for business, innovation, and networking, where strategic partnerships are forged, new technologies are showcased, and opportunities are created across the entire maritime value chain.

The 2028 edition will once again place Vigo at the heart of the international shipbuilding industry for three days, bringing together thousands of professionals to exchange knowledge, develop projects, and explore new business opportunities.

AN INDUSTRY CONNECTED BY THE SEA

Spain has a strong shipbuilding tradition and a highly specialised industry, comprising major shipyards, a robust network of auxiliary companies and leading technology centres.

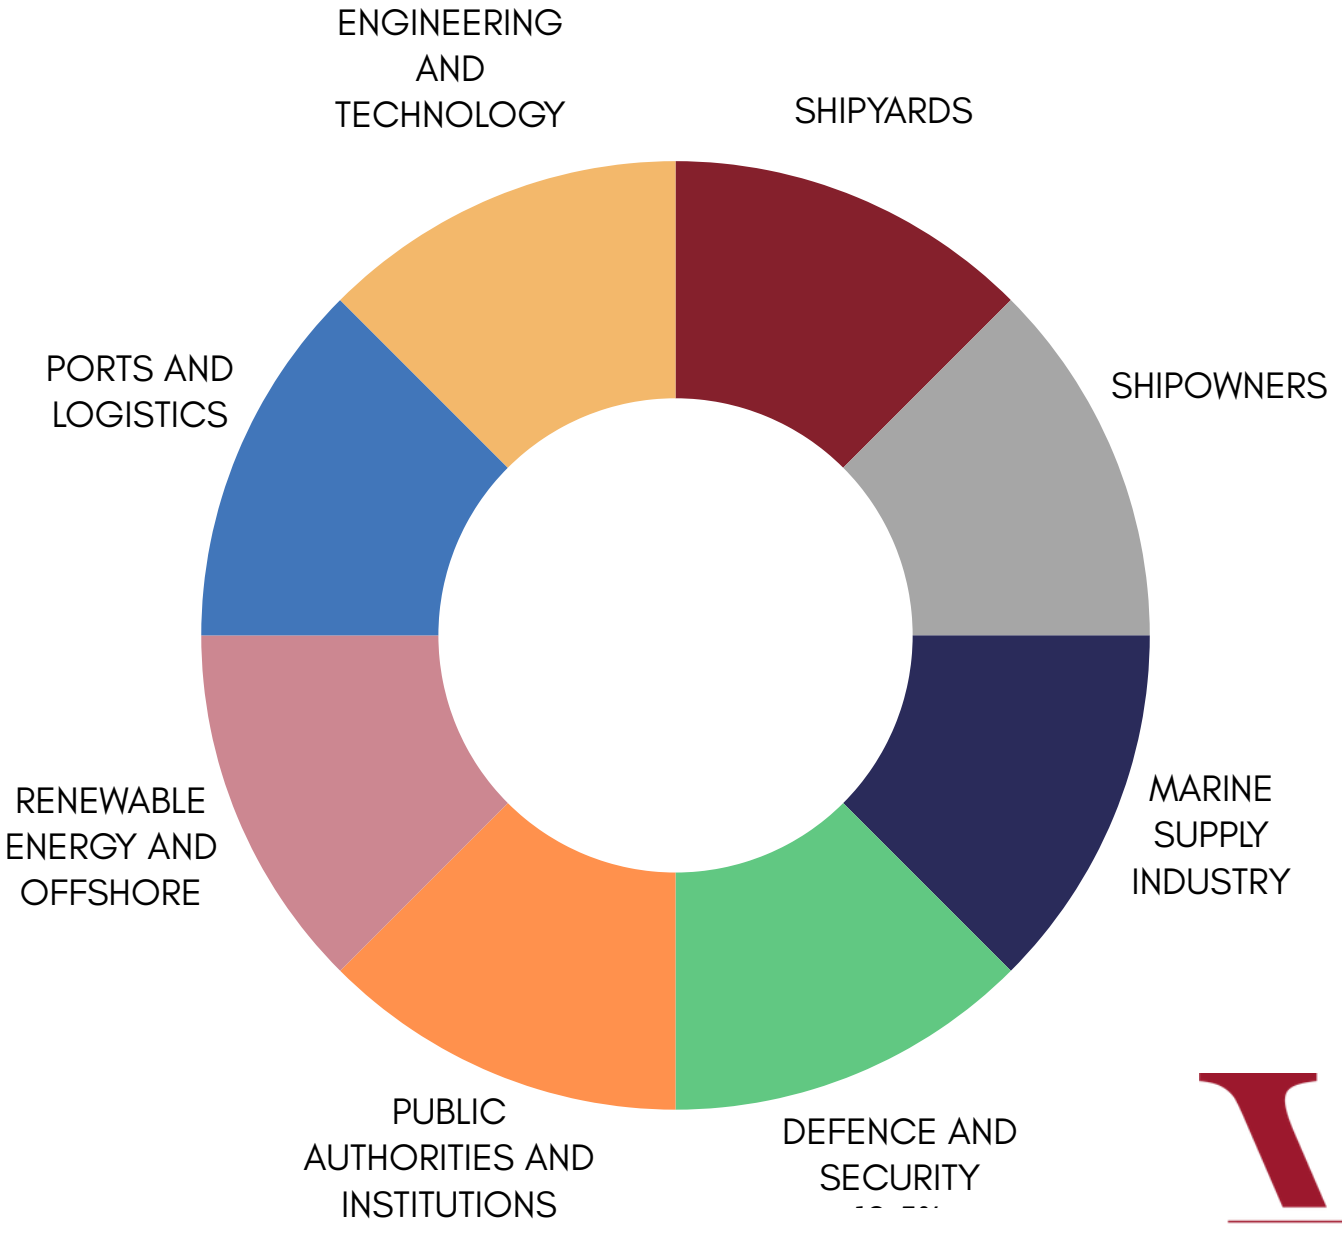

From Galicia to Andalusia, through Asturias, Cantabria, the Basque Country, the Mediterranean coast and the Canary Islands, Spain's shipbuilding industry develops cutting-edge projects in areas such as naval defence, fishing, oceanographic research, offshore vessels, offshore wind and small cruise ships.

- 18 large-capacity private shipyards and one public shipyard.
- More than 25,000 direct jobs generated by the sector.
- A leading position in specialised, high value-added shipbuilding.
- Extensive expertise in defence, fishing, offshore, oceanography and marine renewable energy.
- A broad network of auxiliary industries distributed along the entire Spanish coastline and across its islands.
